

Sordoni Construction hosts Professional Development Day for Saint Peter's University Students

On October 4th, Sordoni Construction Co. and the Center for Career Engagement and Experiential Learning (CEEL) hosted a Professional Development Day for Saint Peter's University Students.

The event was facilitated by Leo Kushner, Chief Financial Officer, Tim Lorenzo, HR Manager, Veronica Sager, Managing Executive, and Melissa Mendez, Project Coordinator. The team actively participated and engaged with the students through an Interview Preparation and Resume Review workshop.

Through the Professional Development Day, Sordoni Construction employees were able to advise the students on career development by sharing their professional experience and the skillsets that they believe are paramount to success in the workforce.

Overall, the event served as an opportunity for students to simulate thoughtful interviewing and receive constructive feedback regarding their resumes.

Pictured from left to right: Sarah Casanova '19, Gail Steward '21, Ripunjay Singh '21, & Andrea Lopez '20

A Sordoni Initiative: Preparing Students for the Workforce

Pictured from left to right: Daryl Levy '83, Director of Employer Relations at CEEL, Melissa Mendez, Tim Lorenzo, Andrea Lopez '20, Ripunjay Singh '21, Gail Steward '21, Sarah Casanova '19, and Veronica Sager (with Murphy the dog).

Sordoni Construction Co. specializes in constructing iconic properties—properties that are extraordinary in their sphere of influence. A residential building becomes the heart and soul of a neighborhood. A corporate headquarters boosts productivity and enhances the company culture. A retail property drives desire, creates the ideal flow of traffic and raises the bar for style and usability. Similarly, Sordoni is constantly raising its own bar towards superior performance in the construction industry.

Sordoni employees were able to outline this success through the Professional Development Day.

Following the event, the students left with new insight on hiring managers' expectations, greater confidence in their interview and resume skills, and appreciation for the wealth of career advice they received from the Sordoni team.